Dear Friends,

Management of haematological disorders (malignant and non-malignant) remains a challenge. It involves the expertise of haematologists (adult and paediatric), Radiation Oncologist, diagnostic teams (Hematopathology, Nuclear Medicine, Radiology).

There is increasing complexity in these fields during the past few decades so there is a need to bring these specialists together on a single platform and understand each other for the management of these disorders.

Medanta Cancer Institute (Radiation Oncology and Hemato-Oncology teams), Medanta–The Medicity, Gurgaon takes this initiative to organize a single day symposium ‘Hematology & Radiation Therapy: Working Together-A collaborative approach in the management of haematological disorders’ and would be held on December 15th 2018 at ‘The Leela Ambience, Gurgaon’.

The scientific events will comprise of presentations, question-answer sessions and panel discussion. The sessions will cover the current aspects in the management of haematological disorders and the role of radiotherapy as well as techniques relating to radiotherapy planning. This meeting would provide a common platform to the Hematologists and Radiation Oncologists to learn from each other and be apprised of the currently available state-of-the-art technologies.

On behalf of the organizing committee, it is our privilege to invite you to this program. We look forward to an interactive, scientifically charged and lively participation from all of you.
